No. 5 Vol. 5 December 24, 1954

Wayne and Shuster find humor a serious business. And seriously, what's funny about 1955? There's a gag here somewhere and in the din of New Year's Eve celebrations, Canada's top comedy team are trying to find it. But any minute their pose of profundity is going to disintegrate in an old-fashioned whoopee as the clock strikes twelve. Wayne and Shuster star in their own show on the CBC Trans-Canada network every Thursday night, and on television every fourth week.

A number of ladies had a surprise party for Betty Williams on her birthday recently. Games and Pot Luck lunch was enjoyed.

Mrs Dorothy Wickhorst and son Brian, who has been visiting her parents, Mr and Mrs Frank Dawley has left to join her husband at Rosington Alta, where they will live this winter.

What is Your Gift?

What are you giving for Christmas? A smile or a song of good cheer? What are you giving for Christmas? The merriest time of the year.

God gave us his son to show us the way.

What are you giving on Christmas day?

What are you doing this Christmas To make everything happy and gay?

What are you doing this Christmas To bring joy in every way?

Whether you're poor, or blessed with wealth

The best you can give is part of yourself.

What are you giving this Christmas

By sign and deed and word?

What are you giving this Christmas

The birthday of our Lord.

By - D. Mary Hyde.

WINTER CARNIVAL SCHEDULED: Quebec City is busy laying plans for a winter carnival which will produce scenes such as above, featuring skating, skiing, tobogganing and similar winter sports. The carnival, which opens officially on January 6, or "Lithval" will take place on the ski hills of Lac Beauport (upper left) and in the shadow of the famed Chateau Frontenac hotel (lower right).

LOCAL GOVERNMENT IN ALBERTA

The function of the Department of Municipal Affairs is the general supervision of local government in Alberta. Dealing chiefly with assessments and taxation, the Department assists municipal officials in their business management problems.

Each of Alberta's cities, towns and villages, has its own local government. Rural areas are divided into municipal districts and counties and these too have their own councils charged with carrying out well defined responsibilities.

Improvement Districts comprise the outlying lands in the Province which not sufficiently well developed to assume the responsibilities of local government. As population increases, improvement districts become municipal districts with their own elected councils, but until they reach this stage of development their affairs are administered directly by the Department of Municipal Affairs.

The Special Areas in south eastern Alberta is another section of the Province which does not have local self government. These areas are administered by a Special Area Board directly responsible to the Department of Municipal Affairs. Headquarters of the Board is at Hanna.

In 1950, The County Act became law under which the council of a municipal district or the board of the school division may request that their district be established as a county. In a county, a single local government, called a county council, combines the work formerly done by the municipal council and the local school board. One council instead of two, and one budget instead of two means greater economy, more efficient administration and improved and expanded services can then be rendered.

Many requests for the change have been received and by 1954 five counties have been established in widely separated and different parts of Alberta. All five are operating efficiently and there is little doubt that further counties will be established in the Province.

The Department of Municipal Affairs is divided into several Branches. One of these, the Assessment Branch sets up uniform standards of assessments throughout the Province, and deals with adjustments or revisions of various assessments of any town, village or hamlet and will absorb fifty percent of the cost.

The Municipal Inspections Branch conducts an annual inspection of the books and records of all towns, villages and municipal districts in Alberta, paying particular attention to their by laws, budgets and methods of finance. This Branch also looks after any changes in status or boundaries.

The Field Service Branch assesses all lands in improvement districts, collects a considerable amount of taxes and values various parcels of land for other government purposes.

The Tax Recovery Branch supervises the enforcement of the Tax Recovery Act under which land may be sold for unpaid taxes.

The Town and Rural Planning Branch is the executive arm of the Provincial Planning Advisory Board. It provides technical assistance on town planning wherever this service is requested. No charge is made for expert advice on such matters as road intersections, general plans and zoning by laws for a 20 year development program.

This Branch is responsible for the planning of Drayton Valley, Alberta's youngest townsite. The Minister of Municipal Affairs is also the Minister in Charge of Civil Defence for the Province and the Provincial Secretary.
